DEDICATION

To

YOU

owner of this book, we dedicate this volume of the CORNERSTONE. Without your enthusiastic interest and your support, our task of presenting the happenings of the year at HJC would have been impossible.

HOLMES JUNIOR COLLEGE

"Grow with a growing institution"

M. C. McDANIEL, President

GOODMAN, MISS.

Sep. 1, 1938

Dear Mother,

Just a note to let you know that I got to HJC all right. Will register tomorrow. Tell Dad I need some money for my books. Will write more later.
Love,

JOE.

Sept. 10, 1938

Dear Mom,

This is Mr. Mac's picture. You remember you met him this summer. He's just as friendly as he looks—not at all like a stern professor. Why, he can call me by my first name already, when he hasn't really seen me but once or twice.

Mr. Mac has been president here for about ten years. Everybody says he's the best in the state. Gosh, I'm glad I came to school here where he's boss.

I got the faculty members' pictures, too. They're a pretty good sort after all, even if Miss Jessie does make terrible assignments.

Love,

JOE.

THE CLASSES

I. Sophomores

Dear Dad,

These are the Sophomores. They're a pretty nice bunch after all, when you get to know them. I didn't really mean all the things I said about them, even if I do have to shine their shoes and sweep their rooms. But they aren't as bad as I had been told. Some of these people come from up around home, so I labeled them for you.

Love,

JOE.

❖ 11. Freshmen ❖

Dear Mom,

At last I've managed to get pictures of all the freshmen. Their hair has grown out some, so you wouldn't recognize them from sophomores. And, after all, the freshmen take part in everything down here just like everybody else.

Mary's picture is in here. I suppose I told you about Mary. I've had a couple of dates with her. She's blonde, and . . . well, you know. Mary's in everything around here. She's so busy that I don't get to see her much except on Sunday.

Love,

JOE.

P. S. My picture is in this bunch, too.

Dear Mom,

I'm sending you the pictures of the winners in the Who's Who contest we had last Monday and some of the other big shots on the campus. Your humble offspring wasn't elected anything, but Mary was runner-up in the popularity contest. And all these people are good friends of mine, so maybe I can shine in reflected glory at least.

Love, JOE.

P. S. Tell Dad I'm broke.

P. S. Mary's birthday comes next week anyway.

ORGANIZATIONS

Dear Mom:

Everybody down here is in some kind of organization. Why we have a school paper and an annual that make a record of each year's happenings.

And nearly everybody belongs to the YM or the YW because these organizations do a great Christian work on the campus.

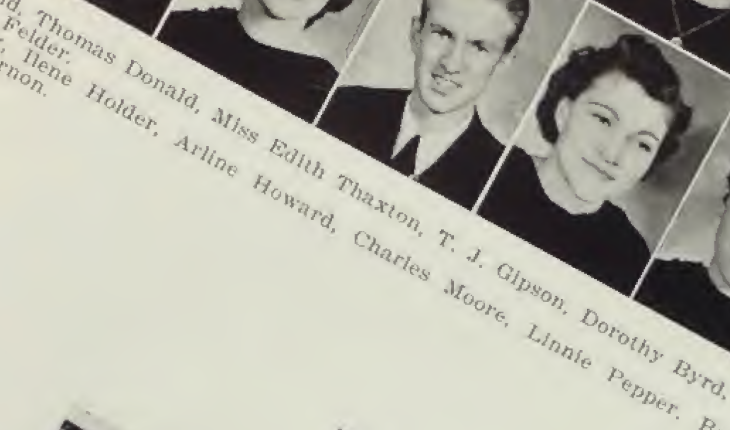

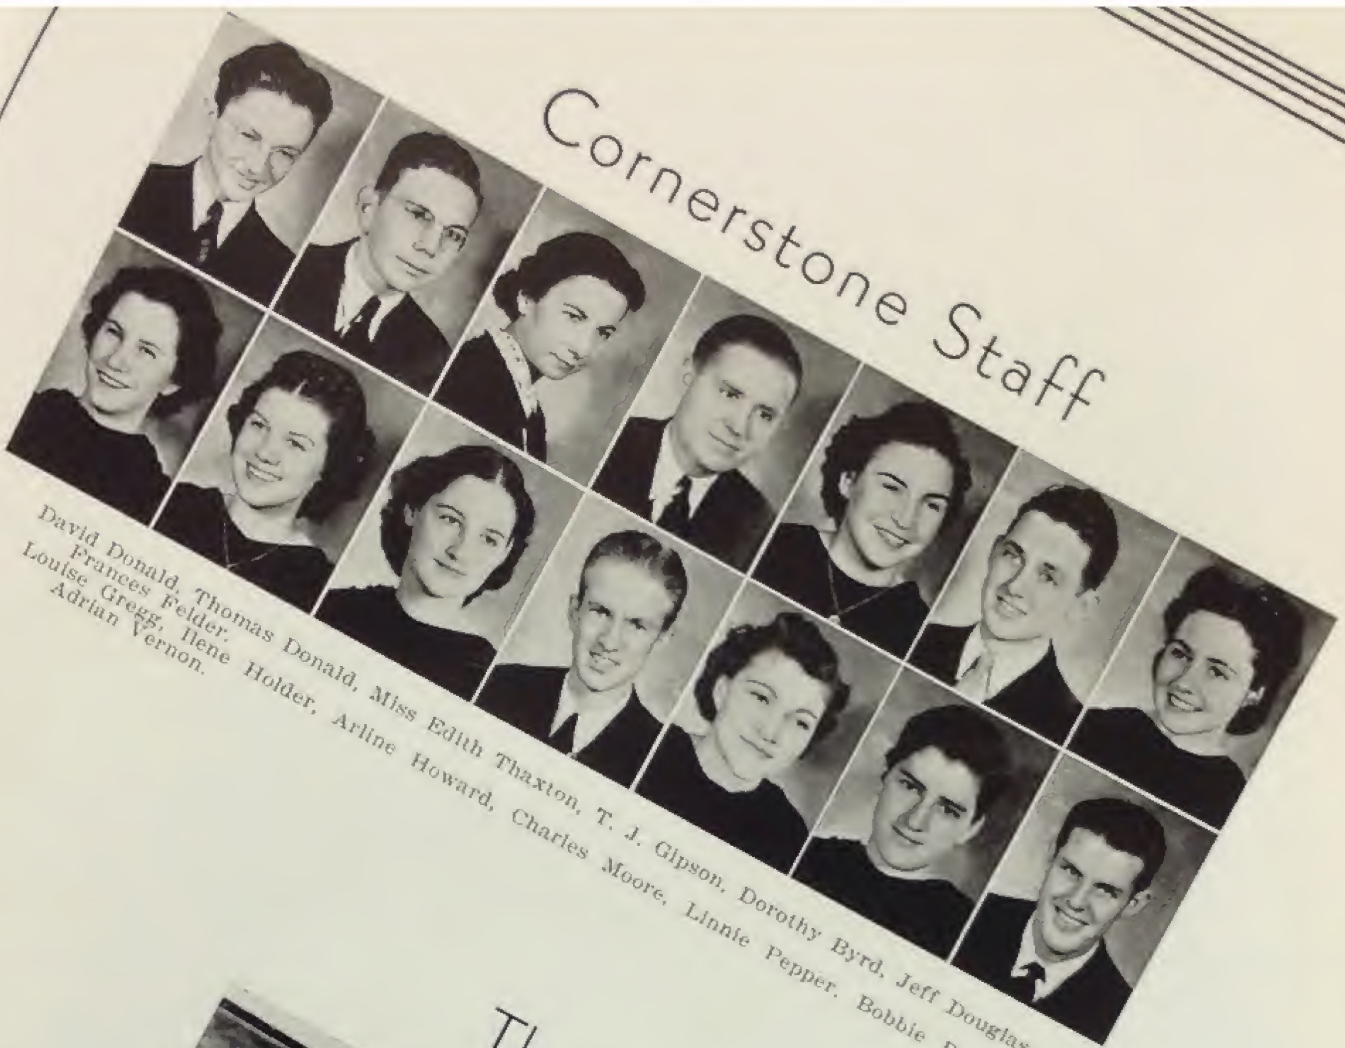

There are lots of other organizations like the International Relations Club, the Deltans, and the music organizations, so everybody gets to take part in some group activity.

Love,

JOE.

P. S. Mary has been elected to the YW Cabinet for next year.

"Leven little bulldogs sitting on the ben(ch)
 One fell off, and then there were ten.
 Ten little bulldogs waiting in line;
 One had to warm up, then there were nine.
 Nine little bulldogs knowing they can rate;
 One had to substitute then there were eight.
 Eight little bulldogs yelling like 'leven;
 One had to shut his mouth, then there were seven.
 Seven little bulldogs chewing on sticks,
 One swallowed his and then there were six.
 Six little bulldogs feeling much alive.
 One overcalled himself, then there were five.
 Five little bulldogs watching the score;
 One saw a pretty girl, then there were four.
 Four little bulldogs—all for H. J. C.—
 One bet on Wesson, then there were three.
 Three little bulldogs didn't know what to do;
 One began to howl, then there were two.
 Two little bulldogs not having fun
 One began "you saw"—then there was one.
 One little bulldog—the whistle blew then—
 And back to the bench came all the other ten.
 They began to yell and they began to scream
 "Hurrah—Hurray—for the scrub team!"

SOME LYRICAL LIMERICKS OF LOVE

A brilliant young fellow named David,
Against all the lovers he ravéd;
From silly romance,
And Love's hectic dance,
He prayed all the gods to be savéd.

Like Sir Francis Bacon the learned,
For all kinds of knowledge he yearned;
Like Paul, misogynic,
He still was a cynic
And all the poor ladies he spurnéd.

The brilliant ones earnestly strived
To get the young misanthrope wivéd;
But when they came by
With amorous sigh,
Into his studies he divéd.

With wit and philosophy arméd,
By Cupid he could not be harméd,
And women with brain
Besieged him in vain—
By them he would never be charméd.

And ever Love's dream he reviled,
And upon it anathemas piléd,
Till—one day a dumb chit,
With nothing but It,
Looked up at our David and smiléd.

The brilliant young scholar he glanced,
His heart gave a leap, and it praneéd;
Philosophy fled,
And now they are wed.
Who on earth can tell how it chaneéd!

The laziest man i kan think ov now, was Israel Dunbar, ov Billingsville. He dried up a new milch cow in milkin her 3 times, and planted a aker of beans, last spring, awl in one hill. He is 45 years old, and haiNt had the meazles yet; he haz alwus bin tew lazy tew ketch them. He had one son, who was jist like him. This boy died when he was 18 years old, in crossing a korn-field; the punkin-vines took after him and smothered him to death.

Courtship is a bow-knot that matrimony pulls into a hard knot.

A DITTY

I was told to write a ditty,
And I thought it quite a pity
For I knew of nothing pretty
For to form a basic line.

Human beings all are merry,
And the Muses are right scurvy,
And the world is tops-turvy,
To a poet in the brine.

Then I saw the lovers swinging,
And close together clinging,
As they heard the fishes singing
In the ripples on the vine.

And then I went a-walking,
And the trees were all a-talking—
"I think it's us they're mocking,"
Said the poplar to the pine.

And the kisses of the breezes
Brought about some little sneezes
And a few allergic squeezes
Of the lovers in the line.

Thus I end my foolish ditty
And I say it is a pity
Poets must be wise and witty;
Now let us go and dine.

DIFFICULT seeing tasks such as reading fine print, when performed under inadequate light, often put a severe strain on eyes.

For easy, safe seeing, eyes should have plenty of light, well diffused and free from glare.

Most children enter school with perfect eyesight; but by the time they graduate from college 40% have defective vision . . . Scientists are agreed that LIGHT CONDITIONED SCHOOL ROOMS would do much to reduce this heavy toll.
